Poslanstvo ansambla

Smo komorna skupina, specializirana za revitalizacijo evropskega instrumentalnega repertoarja z začetka 18. stoletja. Naše delo poganjajo raziskovalna prizadevanja in nenehna potreba, da dojamemo bistvo historično informirane izvajalske prakse. Trudimo se, da oživimo popolnoma neznana dela in ponovno odkrijemo pozabljen glasbeni jezik baroka. Je jezik, ki je v neskladju z uveljavljeno glasbeno tradicijo, jezik, ki daje nov življenjski zagon prav vsakemu glasbenemu dejanju. Govorica, ki se ves čas spreminja – sveža, ki izhaja iz globokega razumevanja preteklosti in vabi poslušalca, da doživi glasbo na nov način. Ukorinjena v umetnost prepričevanja, retorična glasba, pri kateri je polno razlage, gibanja in navdušenja.

The mission statement of the ensemble

We are a chamber music ensemble specialising in the recovery of the European instrumental repertoire of the early 18th century. Our work is driven by our inquiring minds and the constant need to grasp the essence of Historically Informed Performance practice. We seek to give life to completely unknown works and rediscover the forgotten musical language of the Baroque period. It is a language which breaks with the established music tradition, a language which gives a new lease of life to each musical act. An ever-changing speech – fresh yet emerging from a deep understanding of the past and inviting the audience to experience music in a new way. Rooted in the art of persuasion, rhetorical music the way we deliver it is there to teach, move and delight.

Sporočilo umetnikov obiskovalcem

Novoodkrite sonate za violino in continuo Johann Georg Pisendel vas bodo popeljale po stopinjah enega največjih violinistov 18. stoletja, ki so ga cenili veliki mojstri Bach, Telemann in Vivaldi. Odkrili bomo nekaj pozabljenih glasbenih zakladov, ki jih hrani Schrank II, njegova osebna glasbena zbirka, ki je (delno) preživelva bombardiranje, požare in poplave.

Artists' message to visitors

Johann Georg Pisendel: Newly discovered sonatas for violin and continuo will make the audience travel through the footsteps of one of the greatest violinists of the 18th century, who was praised by Bach, Telemann, and Vivaldi. We will discover some of the forgotten musical treasures kept at the Schrank II, his personal music collection that has (partially) survived bombings, fires, and floods.

(Telemann o Pisendlu)

Johann Georg Pisendel se je rodil 26. decembra 1687 v mestecu Cadolzburg blizu Nürnberg. Bil je eden tistih umetnikov, ki so nedvomno zaznamovali evropsko glasbeno sceno prve polovice osemnajstega stoletja. Bil je referenca za izvajalce in skladatelje svojega časa, njegova zapuščina pa nas še naprej preseneča in odkriva temeljne in neznane vidike baročnega glasbenega sveta. Kljub temu je Pisendel še vedno velika neznanka.

Bil je učenec Torelli, Montanarija, Heinichena in Vivaldija, s katerim je gojil tudi globoko prijateljstvo. Njegovi prijatelji so bili tudi Bach, Telemann, Graupner, Zelenka, Hasse in Graupner. Med tem čudovitim seznamom prijateljev vemo, da je Bach pisal posebej zanj in da so mu Vivaldi, Telemann in Albinoni posvetili sonate in koncerete. Kot učitelj je imel Pisendel med svojimi učenci glasbenike, kot so Quantz, Benda in Agricola. Poleg tega je bil Pisendel nadarjen skladatelj, eden največjih virtuoзов osemnajstega stoletja ter navdušen zbiratelj in mukotrpni prepisovalec, ki mu je uspelo zbrati v svojem arhivu za orkester v Dresdenu več kot dva tisoč partitur, zaradi česar je njegova zbirka znana kot Schrank II. zbirka in je eden najpomembnejših glasbenih arhivov prve polovice osemnajstega stoletja.

1. januarja 1712 je bil Pisendel uradno imenovan za Premier Violiste u. Cammer-Musicus dresdenske Hofkapelle. Njegova kariera v Dresdenu bi se težko začela bolje. Takoj, ko je vstopil na dvor, se je pridružil izbranemu spremstvu, ki je mladega princa Augusta spremljalo na njegovi veliki turneji po Evropi. Pisendel je svoja potovanja v odlično izkoristil. Leta 1714 je v Franciji pobral nekaj neobjavljenih del Couperina in se v Italiji od 1716 do 1717 pomešal z vrhunskimi glasbeniki. Leta 1717 se je vrnil v Dresden in takoj zasedel svoje mesto revizorja poleg koncertnega mojstra Volumierja, kar je veliko priznanje za novinca in nedvoumen pokazatelj njegove spremnosti.

Ko je Volumier leta 1728 umrl, je Pisendel postal vodja enega najvidnejših in najbolj cenjenih evropskih orkestrov v Evropi. Johann Sebastian Bach je 23. avgusta 1730 zapisal: »Le pogledati morate v Dresden, da vidite, kako vse njegove glasbenike

(Telemann about Pisendel)

Johann Georg Pisendel was born on 26 December 1687 in the small town of Cadolzburg, near Nuremberg. He was one of those artists who undoubtedly marked the European music scene of the first half of the eighteenth century. He was a reference for performers and composers of his time and his legacy continues to surprise us and discover fundamental and unknown aspects of the Baroque musical world. Yet, Pisendel is still a great unknown.

He was a student of Torelli, Montanari, Heinichen and Vivaldi, with whom he also cultivated a deep friendship. Friends of his were also Bach, Telemann, Graupner, Zelenka, Hasse and Graupner. From among this wonderful list of friends we know that Bach wrote especially for him and that Vivaldi, Telemann and Albinoni dedicated sonatas and concerts to him. As teacher, Pisendel had among his students musicians like Quantz, Benda and Agricola. In addition, Pisendel was a talented composer, one of the greatest virtuosos of the eighteenth century and an avid collector and painstaking copyist who managed to gather in his archive for the orchestra of Dresden over two thousand scores, making his collection, known as Schrank II collection, one of the most important musical archives of the first half of the eighteenth century.

On 1 January 1712, Pisendel was officially appointed Premier Violiste u. Cammer-Musicus for the Dresdner Hofkapelle. His career in Dresden could hardly have started better. As soon as he entered the court, he joined the select entourage that was to accompany young prince August on his Grand Tour around Europe. Pisendel took full advantage of his travels. In 1714, in France, he picked up some unpublished works by Couperin and, while in Italy from 1716 to 1717, mixed with the top musicians. In 1717 he returned to Dresden and immediately took up his place in the front desk next to concertmaster Volumier, a great distinction for a newcomer and an unequivocal indication of his skill.

On Volumier's death in 1728, Pisendel became the leader of one of Europe's most outstanding and most highly appreciated orchestras in Europe. Johann Sebastian Bach wrote on 23 August 1730, "You just have to look at Dresden to see how all its musicians are paid plačuje Njegovo Veličanstvo ... Tem glasbenikom ni treba skrbeti, da bi zaslužili za preživetje, zato se lahko odrežejo z enim samim instrumentom. Res je izjemna vreden poslušanja.« (Najnižja plača v Dresdenskem orkestru je bila takrat okoli 100 talerjev, v Bachovem pa 51). Pisendel je do konca življenja oasedal mestu koncertnega mojstra. Umrl je 25. novembra 1755.

Med drugim je bil zadolžen za inštrumentalno glasbo dvora (Repertoire der Instrumentalmusik). Ta položaj je zahteval, da Pisendel »poisci in uredi svojo glasbo in glasbo drugih skladateljev«. Po vsaj osemindvajsetih letih (verjetno več) pri aranžiranju »svoje lastne glasbe« je presenetljivo majhno število njegovih lastnih skladb, ki so ohranjene: pet del za orkester, enajst koncertov za violino in orkester, ena sonata za violino solo in šest sonat za violino in continuo.

Vse te skladbe najdemo v njegovi osebni zbirki, zbirki instrumentalne glasbe Schrank II. Tu ne najdemo le del, ki so bila izvedena na dvoru v Dresdnem, ampak tudi dela, ki so pripadala zasebni zbirki Pisendla ali celo skice nekaterih njegovih skladb. Zaradi tega je toliko bolj preseneča, da v tem arhivu ne najdemo več njegovih skladb. Pojasnilo: mnoga dela še niso identificirana.

V Schrank II je približno sto devetdeset rokopisov, ki vsebujejo več kot dvesto anonimnih skladb. V zadnjih raziskavah tega zaklada smo lahko vznemirljivo identificirali nove avtorje.

Nekatere teh identifikacij, kot so nove sonate, predstavljene v tem programu, so povezane z raziskavo, ki jo Javier Lutiáñez, Scaramuccin violinist in muzikolog, trenutno izvaja na Schrank II. Te identifikacije vključujejo dela Westhoffa, Lonatija, Leclairja, novo vivaldijsko kadenco in identifikacijo dveh Vivaldijevih sonat, vključno z najzgodnejšim znanim delom Vivaldija. Obe Vivaldijevi sonati sta bili posneti na prvi zgoščenki ansambla Scaramuccia (Vivaldi Nuove sonate, Ayros, 2016). Nove Pisendlove sonate za violino in continuo so najnovješja odkritja, ki jih je obelodani Lutiáñezov doktorski študij o Pisendlu in njegovi zbirki.

Sonate predstavljajo ravnotesje med virtuoznostjo in retorično dramo, značilno za kompozicijski jezik Pisendla. Tako kot v drugih njegovih sonatah vidimo popolno assimilacijo italijanskega in nemškega sloga na način, ki ga najdemo le v Dresdnem. Pasaže, ki nas spominjajo na Vivaldijev ali Bachov vpliv na Pisendla, so prepletene z njegovim izvirnim in briljantnim slogom.

by His Majesty ... Those musicians do not have to worry about earning their living, so they can excel on a single instrument. It's really remarkable and well worth listening to". (The lowest wage in the Dresden orchestra back then was about 100 thaler, whereas in Bach's it was 51). Pisendel continued in the position of concertmaster for the rest of his life. He died on 25 November 1755.

He was in charge, among other duties, of the instrumental music of the court (Repertoire der Instrumentalmusik). This position required Pisendel "to get and arrange his own music and that of other composers". After at least twenty-eight years (likely more), arranging "his own music" it is striking, however, the limited number of own compositions that have reached us: five works for orchestra, eleven concertos for violin and orchestra, one sonata for solo violin and six sonatas for violin and continuo.

All these compositions are found in his personal collection, the Schrank II collection of instrumental music. In this collection we find not only the pieces that were performed in the court of Dresden but also works that belonged to the private collection of Pisendel or even sketches of some of his compositions. This makes it more surprising that we do not find more pieces of Pisendel himself in this archive. The explanation: many of these pieces have not yet been identified.

There are about one hundred ninety manuscripts that contain more than two hundred anonymous pieces in the Schrank II. Thanks to recent research, new and exciting identifications have emerged from this treasure of anonymous pieces.

Some of these identifications like the new sonatas presented in this program are linked to the research that Javier Lutiáñez, Scaramuccia's violinist and musicologist, currently performs on the Schrank II. These identifications include works by Westhoff, Lonati, Leclair, a new vivaldian cadenza, and the identification of two Vivaldi sonatas, including the earliest known work of Vivaldi. Both Vivaldi sonatas were recorded on the first CD of the ensemble Scaramuccia (Vivaldi Nuove sonate, Ayros, 2016). These new Pisendel sonatas for violin and continuo are the latest discoveries that Lutiáñez's PhD studies on Pisendel and his collection have brought to light.

The sonatas present the balance between virtuosity and rhetorical drama typical of the compositional language of Pisendel. As in other of his sonatas we see a perfect assimilation of the Italian and German style in a way that we only find in Dresden. Passages that remind us of Pisendel's influences such as Vivaldi or Bach are Morda jih bomo zdaj, ko za ta dela nesporne kakovosti poznamo tudi imena skladateljev, tudi pogosteje slišali v koncertnih dvoranah. Do zdaj pa so bila anonimna in pozabljena. Program dopolnjujejo tri anonimna dela iz Pisendlove zasebne zbirke Schrank II. Ne vemo, kdo so njihovi avtorji, a njihova odlična glasbena kakovost je razlog, da jih izvajamo in opozorimo, da je treba odkriti še veliko neznane čudovite glasbe.

interspersed with the original and brilliant Pisendel's style.

Perhaps now that these works, of unquestionable quality, have a composer's name on them, they can be heard more in concert halls. But until very recently they were anonymous and forgotten works. The program is completed with three anonymous works belonging to Pisendel's private collection, the Schrank II. We do not know the name of their authors, but their great musical quality is reason enough to perform them and to remind us that there is still a lot of unknown marvellous music to discover.

Scaramuccia je bila ustanovljena z namenom, da odkriva manj znan baročni repertoar. V svoji karieri je ansambel prejel pohvale za živahnost in izraznost svojih nastopov, njihove bližine javnostim in izvirnosti svojih programov. Scaramuccia je bila nagrajena z nagrado občinstva na tekmovanju Göttinger Reihe Historischer Musik 2015/2016. Njihov prvi album Vivaldi. Nuove Sonate (Ayros, 2016) vključuje tudi RV 820 in RV 205/2, ki ju je nedavno odkril Javier Lüpianez, violinist in muzikolog ansambla. Trenutni projekt ansambel je The Cabinet II Project, ki prioveduje o glasbenem popotovanju v Dresden Johanna Georga Pisendla preko njegove zbirke rokopisov Schrank II, ki jih hrani Sächsische Landesbibliothek – Staats- und Universitätsbibliothek Dresden. Zgoščenki »1717. Spomini na potovanje v Italijo«, ki je bila nominirana leta 2019 za nagrado ICMA, in »Pisendel. Neue Sonaten«, pravkar izdana decembra 2020, sta prva albuma tega projekta.
