Aag Dereymaeker studied violin with Nico Baltussen and chamber music with Jaap Kruithof and Roel Dieltiens at the Lemmens Institute in Leuven. A few years later, she obtained a diploma in baroque violin from Stedelijk Conservatorium Leuven with Marianne Herssens. He is part of the permanent core of the chamber orchestra La Passione from Lier, occasionally represents Belgium together with Hubert Boon at folklore festivals and participates in all kinds of projects, from musical theater to pop and musical productions. In 2007, Aag became Klara's classical music ambassador for her work with Violet, an unusual string orchestra she founded in 2002 that donates all profits to a sister project in South Africa. Last May, she was a guest lecturer at the ESTA international conference in Cremona, Italy. Over the years, Aag has built a solid private class in Leuven, teaches at the Jette Academy, and collaborates with the Lennik Music Academy.
